Is your product ready-to-eat certified?

If your operation requires the flexibility of using ingredients right out of the box without a food safety cooking step, a ready-to-eat (RTE) designation is essential. When you purchase Haliburton products you can rest assured that the ingredients you're serving have been handled with a high degree of care and have passed a battery of food safety tests to validate their RTE status.¹

1. Most Haliburton items are ready to eat certified. Please consult with your sales representative for additional details.

Recognized by many of the nation's largest multi-unit restaurant operators as a trend forward, innovative custom food manufacturer and development company, Haliburton International Foods has the culinary and food science excellence to create "best in class" products that will differentiate your menu from the competition.

Our capabilities cover a broad spectrum of products including fire roasted vegetables and fruits, pickled vegetables and fruits, artisan style kettle cooked sauces and soups, authentic Mexican salsas, decadent dessert sauces, cutting edge beverage mixers, ancient grains, beans, jams, relishes and many other leading edge food products.

And while Haliburton is well known for its custom product capabilities, a wide variety of "standard items" are available all made with the same Haliburton quality customers have come to expect. Along with favorable minimum order quantities, Haliburton's culinary creations are designed specifically for restaurant operators looking for scratch quality with ready-to-use convenience.

One of the Fastest Growing Manufacturers

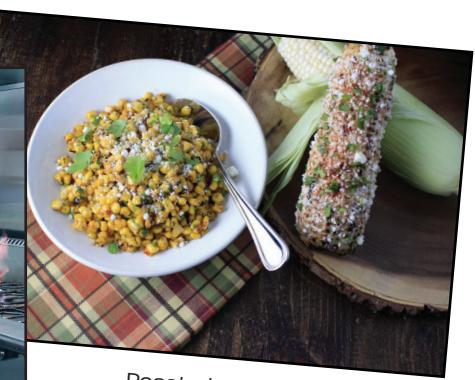

Established in 1992 with the goal of marrying food science and culinary excellence to improve the quality and reduce the cost of manufactured foods, Haliburton has grown into a specialty foods powerhouse. A close-up photograph of a meal. In the foreground, there are several large, juicy pieces of meat, possibly ribs or steaks, covered in a dark, glossy barbecue sauce. Below the meat, there is a serving of yellow corn kernels. In the background, there are diced red bell peppers and some green herbs, likely cilantro or parsley, scattered over the dish.
